Sixteen exhibitors—including Addis Fine Art (Addis Ababa), Circle Art Gallery (Nairobi), and Mashrabia Gallery (Cairo)—hail from Africa.

The fair with work by some 140 artists will include solo exhibitions for Alexandria Smith (Galleria Anna Marra), Chourouk Hriech (L'Atelier 21), Ibrahim El Salahi (Vigo Gallery), and others. A special projects program will include an exhibition of work by Mary Sibande, to remain on view into January, and a talks program curated by Kerry Greenberg, head of international collection exhibitions at the Tate, will focus on the legacy of the Nigerian curator Bisi Silva, who died earlier this year.

Touria El Glaoui, director of 1-54—which was founded in London and later expanded to New York and Marrakech, Morocco—said in a statement, “We are delighted with the exciting line-up of galleries for our seventh edition in London and are honored to be dedicating the 1-54 Forum program to the inspirational Bisi Silva and showcasing the amazing work of Mary Sibande as part of our Special Projects.”
